PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It is our sincere hope that you are enjoying our publication as much as we appreciate the ones we receive in exchange. We learn as much from researching material for each new edition as we do from our own individual research. We have had several interesting letters from readers with news that they have found a name or lead that has helped them in their search and that is satisfaction to us for the effort expended. We would also like to know in what ways we might improve our publication--what would you like to know about the area and the records pertaining to it's inhabitants. Betty Marshall is our editor and we feel she is doing a super job!

We have several new members who are excited about learning the best possible methods of researching their ancestry. For that reason, the president of our Society is taking the National Genealogical Society's correspondence course which promises to be very interesting. We are all hoping to benefit from the course.

We look forward to each new experience in our genealogical search and wish the days were longer and the research material were closer so that each of us could find our roots in good time.

Helen Aaberg, President
Broken Mountains Genealogical Society

THE PRAIRIE INN REGISTER

In the spring of 1908 the Prairie Inn opened to serve an ever increasing demand for a comfortable stopping place near the depot and business center of Chester. By fall of the same year a large addition was built and a year later another one. The Chester Signal carried the names of 97 guests for the week of November 25th, 1909. The hotel not only provided lodging for the influx of homesteaders and local over-nighters but had a dining room, a saloon, sample rooms, a hall where many of the town social gatherings occurred and often land locators, bankers, doctors, dentists, barbers, milliners and dress makers advertised their services from its rooms. One register of the hotel is on display in the Liberty County Museum. It begins with the guest list for October 3, 1909.

"My Mother's Elopement" is a true story about my parents, Linus Markuson and Ester Victoria Naslund in the year of 1908. My father dropped his middle names and one "s" in his last name at the port of entry into the USA. I am the fifth child born to this marriage. I was christened Lesa Adelia Markuson. My birth was registered in Helena, Montana twenty years later as Elizabeth Adelia Markuson.

MY MOTHER'S ELOPEMENT

My mother had asked her father many times for permission to marry the man with whom she had fallen in love. Always the answer was, "No, not to a man of his low estate."

This man did indeed come from an impoverished home. His formal education ended with the fourth grade when his father died from a heart attack while out in the woods hunting for a certain kind of tree from which to make a coffin for the infant son who had died the day before. Now the fourth grader had to earn his own board and room. This he did by herding cattle in the wooded mountains.

Having made arrangements for a trip to America, which Grandfather approved thinking that it would make her forget this man in her life, Mother packed her things and said her goodbyes at Vilhelmina, Sweden. What Grandfather did not know was that her husband to be was waiting in Norway to join her on her trip to America. Because he had no money, Mother bought his ticket; and so they set sail! After a brief stop in England, they were again at sea. Traveling third class, they were crowded into small quarters. Mother bunked with three other ladies in a room scarcely large enough for their bunks. Dad always said that although they traveled third class, they danced first class all the way across. During the day they left their deck and went to the top deck where there was music and dancing.

They landed at Quebec the early part of September in 1908 about two weeks after leaving Sweden. Their original destination was a small town in Canada; however some newly made friends told them that that town had little to offer and that they should go to Warren, Minnesota where many Swedes had settled.

At the port of entry to the United States Mother had a brief bit of anxiety. Knowing that she had to produce two hundred fifty dollars before she would be allowed to enter, she had the money ready. The rest of her money she had sewed to her under-clothes. When asked to show all of her money, she stood very still for a long time, then finally said, "I have more and it is mine". This sufficed, so she was allowed to go on.

The rest of the way they traveled by train. At one stop while Mother and Dad got off to eat, the train cars were switched and some cars were coupled to another train. My parents made the mistake of boarding the wrong train. All of their possessions were on the other train. The money that Mother had once sewed to her under-clothes she had given to Dad for safe keeping. She was more than a little disturbed when told that this was now in the pocket of Dad's coat which was slung over a seat in the other train. The train moved on in spite of their desperate feelings. Upon arriving at the next station, they found that their original train was waiting for them. Some friends had discovered that they were missing and had convinced the conductor to do something about it. Friends had never been so greatly appreciated! Many Swedes found other Swedes on this trip, but a great tragedy soon deprived them of many of these newly found friends. As my parents sat playing cards towards the front of the train, a violent impact shook them. Another train had telescoped their train from the rear. More than half of the passengers were killed. Dad went out to offer help to the injured. He told of boards which had pierced some people and decapitated others. Mother had some injury and so had retained her seat on the train.

When they arrived at Warren, Minnesota, they found that obtaining employment was easier for single people; hence the wedding was postponed for practical reasons. Mother had no trouble finding work in a hotel because she had worked in her father's hotel and knew the business very well. Her room was a tiny basement room and the working hours were from six in the morning until ten at night.

Inasmuch as Dad's job on a farm and Mother's job in a hotel both offered free board and room, the idea of a secret marriage appealed to them. And so one Saturday evening they were married. The next day both of them were to have a day off. This altered when the landlady came into Mother's room early Sunday morning and found a man there. She was angered to think that this nice Swedish girl was not so nice after all, and embarrassed because she herself was dressed only in her nightgown. Mother was ordered to the attic to patch mattresses. After dressing and regaining her composure the landlady went upstairs to question her employee who tearfully explained that she was married the night before and had expected the day off. The landlady remained suspicious until the wedding certificate was produced. Now the entire atmosphere changed. Mother and Dad were treated to a lovely wedding dinner party, and Mother was given the best of recommendations for a new job which would not require her to live at the place of employment. Thus they embarked on a new life together in this wonderful new country!

RIVER PRESS, Fort Benton, Mt.

Dec. 11, 1889 Tony Macgregor was in today from the Marias section with a few coyote hulls on which he will get the bounty. When he struck Janitor Dennis Halpin at the court house, the two began talking of old "wolfing days". Dennis tells a good one on Tony which the latter acknowledges like a little man. During one of their wolfing trips; they had an Indian scare and Tony got rattled and "scattered". The "boys" did not find him until late next morning when they struck his trail and followed it to a badger hole from which after repeated calls and assurances of safety, Tony finally emerged. He says he went into the hole feet first, after slightly enlarging it with a butcher knife. Tony says it was a close fit, but he had to get there; it was a "ground hog case".

Dec. 27, 1889 It is rumored on the streets today that Mr. James Ross has sold an interest in another one of his promising leads in the Sweet Grass hills to Mr. Kyle Price, of this city. The Sweet Grass leads are coming to the front.

Mr. James Whyte sold a one-third interest in the M & M lead, Sweet Grass hills a few days ago to Mr. Charles Price of this city, consideration not stated, but we understand that both parties are well pleased over the deal.

Dec. 25, 1889 The Missouri river at Fort Benton is still open and is flowing along through orange and banana graves as peacefully as an infant's dream.

Mr. Frank Stiles, of the Sweet Grass express, arrived last night from the mines. He reports every body in that section well and work progressing in the different mines.
